

Soft Coal Strike Threat Made To Coolidge

Threat of a Nation-wide Soft Coal Strike Is Latest Move of Union Leaders to Force Intervention in Strike of Hard Coal Miners.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Philadelphia, Nov. 23.—A threat of a nation-wide soft coal strike was made today as the latest move of union leaders to force intervention in the strike of 158,000 hard coal miners which has been in progress since September 1.

Winter is coming on apace and settlement of the anthracite strike seems to be as far away as ever.

The newest move, a letter to President Coolidge, is made by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America. Lewis specifically asks the president whether the government desires to intervene to "maintain the integrity of the Jacksville soft wage agreement."

Says Agreement Is Violated.
Lewis charges that this agreement, which was reached with the cooperation of the department of justice, commerce and labor, is being violated by the operators.

The switching of action from the anthracite fields, where a strike is in progress, to the bituminous fields, where there is no strike was regarded today as significant. Lewis's action was considered in some quarters as a threat to call a strike in the principal soft coal fields of the country.

Both Sides Are Losing.

President Coolidge has steadfastly maintained a "hands off" policy in connection with the strike, letting the miners and operators fight it out among themselves. The public, too, has shown no great alarm as in previous years, and of late there have been indications that both miners and operators would like to see the strike, which has dragged along for almost three months, with consequent loss to both sides, settled.

Lewis's Letter to President.
Lewis concludes his letter to President Coolidge with this statement:

"If it should occur that the federal government is disposed not to intervene for the protection of a notorious wage agreement, might mine owners believe that their efforts in that direction may be considered as being justified?"

Lewis states that the three-year Jacksonville agreement, which expires March 31, 1927, and which was reached through federal cooperation, has "insured industrial peace in the industry." He charges, however, that many of the largest producers of bituminous coal, who signed the agreement, have violated and repudiated their "written word of honor," and in doing so have impaired the integrity of the wage structure throughout the soft coal industry.

James Four Large Companies.

Four of the largest companies in the industry, including the Pittsburgh Coal Company, are named by Lewis as among those he charges have dishonored the agreement. Lewis wrote the president that the "arbitrary and dishonest" acts of these four companies and of others of less importance, have "added to the burden of those honest coal operators who desire in every particular to operate in accordance with their wage agreement."

Negro's Skull May Be Fractured

Murray Sanderson, a negro residing at Glasco, is in the Kingston City Hospital with a possible fractured skull received about 10 o'clock this morning when the Dort touring car he was riding in turned over on the Glenview hill. Sanderson was hurled to the hospital by Isaac Trowbridge who was passing. In the car with Anderson was Homer Northwell, another negro resident of Glasco, who escaped uninjured. Sanderson was unconscious when brought to the hospital and an X-ray will be taken as soon as possible to ascertain the extent of his injuries.

Kleagle Whaley Is Unterrified

Still on the Job, The Gun Still Swings at His Hip and the Muttin' Ones are Evicted From Their Hall, Going Weekly.

The Rev. Dr. K. Jeffries Whaley, Ku Klux Klan Kleagle for Ulster county, is still very much on the job, reports some time ago that he had resigned having been in error and based on rumors of unofficial resignations that were not binding. Neither has Mr. Whaley been removed, although mighty efforts have been made by members of several Klans in the county to have his appointment as Kleagle and as a deputy sheriff of Ulster county revoked. The official gun still swings at the Kleagle's waist and his vigor in guarding 100 per cent Americanism is unabated.

Mr. Whaley is unafraid and believes in direct methods of action. Members of two anti-Whaley Klans undertook to hold a meeting one evening last week in the hall of one of them, located not a thousand miles from Kingston, across the bridge. There is a small but loyal pro-Whaley element in one of these units and these, accompanied by a force of men from Kingston and led by Dr. Whaley, entered the hall and ordered the local anti-Whaley men out, formally taking possession in the name of the Klan. The local men left, the exit of the rear guard being hastened when one of them was hit on the head by a gavel hurled by someone. The Kleagle and his "regulars" transacted business for about 15 minutes and then left, after which the local men and their visitors re-entered and discussed ways and means and other things until somewhat after 1 o'clock in the morning.

They will meet again Friday night prepared to repel boarders but convinced that the Kleagle will not dare reappear.

Up to date the Kleagle has not procured a search warrant or taken any other legal proceedings he has been threatening in order to discover and recover Klan property from officials of the Klan that has cut itself off from the dominion of the Invisible Empire. Neither have those mutinous men who sought a means for legally disarming the Kleagle and having him bound over to keep the peace brought about any definite results.

In the meantime clouds loom in the south and at several other points of the compass, the Grand Titan, who was expected to come as an investigator and dove of peace, has not arrived in Ulster county, the option for the Klavern site on the Saugerties road has not been closed and the Klavern bond-market is not as brisk as it was just before election.

Villagers View Queen's Remains

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Sandringham, England, Nov. 23.—Queen Alexandra's body rests in the Chancel of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, bathed in the screened lights of famous old stained glass windows.

Hour after hour the Sandringham villagers file past the simple coffin of the queen, many of them weeping for with the passing of the queen they have lost a friend.

At noon the church is closed to the public for a half hour, while King George and Queen Mary walk from York cottage to the church for a few moments alone with the body of the king's dead mother.

The body of the queen will remain at Sandringham until Thursday when it will be taken to London and then will come the first of the public observances of respect for the dead dowager queen.

On Friday the body will be taken to Westminster Abbey for public funeral ceremonies.

On Saturday the body will be taken to Windsor for burial.

Every Denies Trolley Rumor

Says There Is No Foundation to Story Being Circulated That Trolley Road Was Backing Him in Filing Petition to Operate a Bus Service.

Merritt Evers, the Port Ewen garage proprietor who is having papers drawn up by his attorney to file with the common council seeking permission to operate a six seat far bus line over the route proposed to be covered by Howard C. Winne of Washington avenue for a fare of seven cents, stated today that the rumor that was being circulated in Kingston that the trolley road was back of him was absolutely without foundation.

He said he intended to file his petition to operate a bus line in good faith and that his lawyers would draw up the necessary papers this week which he would file them with City Clerk A. A. Stokes.

Girl Shot in Eye by a Boy With Air Rifle

Little Madeline Augustine of Ann Street May Lose Sight of Eye As Result of Being Shot With Air Rifle in Lindsey's Wood on Sunday Afternoon.

Madeline, the 11 year old daughter of John Augustine of No. 70 Ann street, is in the Benedictine Hospital with a bullet in the eye as the result of being shot by Dominick Treasoni, 13 years old, of No. 37 Hanratty street on Sunday afternoon at the spring quarry in Lindsey's Woods.

The boy together with Stanley Remiszewski, 13 years old, of No. 22 Hanratty street, were arraigned in children's court today before County Judge Joseph M. Fowler.

The shooting was reported to the police on Sunday afternoon by Andrew Tubby and an investigation was made by Sergeant Phinney which led to the arrest of the two boys. According to the police Stanley said he owned the air rifle but it was fired by Dominick. The boys said they were in the woods shooting wild pigeons when they met the girl.

According to the police version of the shooting, the boys said that Dominick fired one shot at the girl's feet and then fired again, the shot entering the eye.

The girl was removed to the Benedictine Hospital where she was attended by Dr. Chester Van Gaasbeck and Dr. William J. Cranston, who removed the bullet from the eye. Dr. Cranston informed the police that he was of the opinion that there was still another bullet lodged in the eye and that the child would lose the sight of the eye.

The air rifle was seized by the police and will be used as an exhibit in the case. Both boys were paroled Sunday in the custody of their parents to appear at the court house.

Dominick informed the police Sunday that the girl called them names and he fired at her feet. He said he did not intend hitting her.

After the shooting the boys disappeared and were not found until several hours later by the police.

Jury Examines Mrs. Rhinelander

By Telegram to The Freeman.

White Plains, N. Y., Nov. 23.—Alice Jones Rhinelander, quadroon bride of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, underwent a "color examination" in Justice Morschauer's chamber with the jury present today at the trial of the Rhinelander marriage annulment suit.

Young Rhinelander and counsel for both sides were permitted to be present during the examination.

The expedient was requested by Lee Parsons Davis, counsel for Mrs. Rhinelander, during a sensational cross examination of young Rhinelander regarding two "mystery letters" sent his bride before their marriage containing unprintable passages.

Davis suddenly asked that the court room be cleared.

"I shall call Mrs. Rhinelander in to show the color of her body," defense counsel announced. Mrs. Rhinelander had left the court room during the reading of the letters.

Isaac N. Mills, counsel for Rhinelander, objected strenuously on the ground the move was for the purpose of influencing the jury. His objection was overruled.

Justice Morschauer then said he would take the jury and counsel into his chambers to examine the defendant's body.

Alice entered the court room and burst into tears.

"We will show her upper body and lower limbs," said Davis.

After the examination, Alice appeared weeping hysterically. Rhinelander looked even more pale and haggard than when on the witness stand.

"You have just seen the upper part of the body of your wife?" asked Davis as Leonard resumed the stand.

"Yes."

"Your wife's body is the same color as when you saw it in the Marie Antoinette?"

"Yes."

This concluded the cross examination of Rhinelander and a luncheon recess was declared.

Up to noon over 20 plates for 1926 had been issued by Deputy County Clerk Blinn in charge of the local bureau and he expected that the total for the day would reach 30.

Take Testimony in Weinstein Case

Abduction Case on Trial in County Court—Defendant Is Charged With Abduction—Alleged Victim Is Resident of Newburgh.

The trial of Samuel Weinstein, charged by the grand jury with abduction, was taken up at the opening of court this morning. Two days were taken up last week in the selection of a jury to hear the case. At the opening of court today Assistant District Attorney Murray opened the case and the examination of witnesses was taken up.

It is alleged that Weinstein in company with Alfred Margolis, another youth from the downtown section of the city, on April 11 of this year committed the crime of abduction by taking a young girl under 18 years of age from a local dance hall under circumstances which constitute abduction. It is charged that the girl, Lillian Irene Corwin of New Windsor, near Newburgh, came to Kingston with a girl friend and two young men on the evening of April 11 and attended a local dance. There Margolis and Weinstein were met by the two young girls. Conversation followed between them and the Corwin girl accepted an invitation to go to a nearby ice cream parlor.

She went with Margolis who told her that her girl friend had already gone for ice cream with Weinstein. On Wall street, she testified, she did not see her girl friend and later Weinstein and Margolis forced her to get into a car and she was driven to South Wall street where Margolis assaulted her. She testified that she was forced to get into the car and that she made outcries at the time.

After the assault she was allowed to get out of the car near the junction of Wall street and the Boulevard and later she found her way back to the dance hall which was closed.

George Farber offered to take her home to Newburgh and she was taken by taxicab to Chambers street where Farber was to get his car. While there she saw two policemen and lodged a complaint against Weinstein and Margolis.

Weinstein was located in a safe and questioned by the officers. Miss Corwin testified that Weinstein offered her money if she would not press a charge. She refused and went with the officers to the home of Margolis where he was located.

Before the case was taken up for trial all jurors not engaged on the case were excluded from the room as the charge against Margolis is to be tried at this term of court and involves the same testimony as the Weinstein case.

Miss Corwin was examined at great length during the early morning session of court and later expert testimony was given by doctors who examined Miss Corwin at the hospital the day following the alleged assault.

Frank W. Brooks and Chris J. Flanagan appear for the defendant. District Attorney Traver and Assistant District Attorney Murray appear for the people.

Kunst Reports Store Burglary

Says That Burglars Jammed Open Front Door of Broadway Store Sunday Night and Stole Over Fifty Overcoats—Police Investigate.

A Kunst & Son who conduct a clothing store at No. 15 Broadway reported to the police department this morning that some time Sunday night the front door of their store had been jammed and the store burglarized.

Between fifty and sixty-five overcoats of a retail value of from $35 to $50 each were stolen.

The front door has a double lock on it. According to Mr. Kunst the locks were forced open by applying a jimmy to the door which sprung the locks and made entrance to the store easy.

There were marks on the front door showing that some instrument had been used on the door. These marks were opposite the key holes. According to Mr. Kunst's theory, the jimmy was placed between the door and the jamb and the door sprang sufficiently so that the double bolts could be sprung.

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood and Sergeant Phinney made an investigation of the theft as soon as it was reported.

Court Examines Young Gun Toters

Boys Who Carry Air Rifles and Youth Who Fired Revolver in School Before Judge Fowler in Children's Court—Other Cases.

In children's court Saturday several boys appeared before Judge Joseph M. Fowler and were questioned in regard to a recent entry into School No. 7 when considerable damage was done to the school. The work was identified as that of boys and the police rounded up several youngsters who reside in the vicinity. None of the boys would admit that they had been connected with the acts.

Boys With Air Guns.

Clifford Schreyer, Donald Merle and Norman Ostrander, three youths who reside in the Hurley avenue section of the city, were also before Judge Fowler on complaint of Larry Mosher who complained that the boys had been making a nuisance in the neighborhood with air rifles. Mr. Mosher complained that a row which he had in a field had been a tug very restless but he did not charge that the boys had fired their air guns at her. Judge Fowler advised the parents of the children in regard to boys having air guns. The opinion seems to be that boys may have air guns and in this case the parents stated that the boys were not using the guns in the built up sections of the city but in the open fields and that they had believed that there was no danger in the manner in which the boys had been using the guns.

Bullet Missed Two Pupils.

George Williams, the youth who borrowed his father's revolver and took it to School No. 2 one day last week to exhibit to the other students without his father's knowledge, was also brought before Judge Fowler. During a study period the sixth grade pupils were suddenly startled when a gun exploded in the room. Young Williams had been unable to resist the temptation of examining the gun in school. He took the gun from his pocket and while examining it, it exploded. The bullet narrowly missed two students who were seated in the path of the bullet and was imbedded in the wall after passing through one of the blackboards. Had the two students been sitting erect instead of intent on their studies, the police believe that one or both would have been struck by the bullet. The gun was the property of young Williams's father and had been kept under lock and key. Young Williams was severely reprimanded by Judge Fowler.

Food Shortage Feared at Nome

The flames destroyed buildings that became historic during the gold rush. Damage was estimated at $200,000. Citizens feared a food shortage might follow the fire, as the largest grocery store here was burned down.

Four men were injured making their escape from burning buildings. Explosion of an oil lamp is supposed to have caused the fire.

SEVERAL CASES BEFORE SCHIRCK IN COURT

The young man was accompanied by three others. He said he had left the license home and that he and his friends had started out for a hunting trip. In the car was a single barrel rifle. As Valenti could not show ownership of the car it is being held by the police until the owner is ascertained. Valenti was fined $5 in police court this morning for driving without a license.

John Mulvaney, arrested for public intoxication Sunday, pleaded insanity that he was discharged with a warning by Judge Schirck.

Thomas Ryan, another Sunday afternoon drunk, was fined $5.

Henry Steinfeld of Lucas avenue, arrested for driving a car without a license, was discharged. He explained he had forgotten to carry the license with him. He was arrested after running into the rear of the car of William A. Reiss of 24 West O'Reilly street.

State Census Figures Show Population of 83,052—Only Three Towns Show Loss Since Last Federal Census—Saugerties Has Biggest Gain With Wawarsing Second—Five Incorporated Villages Also Have Substantial Increases—County's Population Has Been Greater.

Albany, Nov. 23.—With every incorporated village in the county showing substantial gains in population during the past five years and with all but three of the twenty towns in the county recording gains, the 1925 census figures give Ulster county a population of 83,052. This represents a growth of 8,073 since 1920, and goes far in offsetting the decrease in population that occurred between 1915 and 1920, when Ulster county dropped from 85,367 to 71,979, a decrease of 13,388 for the five years.

Increase Is Significant.

Ulster county's splendid gain in population during the last five years becomes even more significant in view of the fact that during the past twenty-five years there have been but two five-year periods when the county has shown any growth. Between 1915 and 1920, four of the five villages in the county lost population and all but one of the score of towns. This year, many of the towns are shown with most satisfactory gains.

Population by Periods.

The following shows the population of Ulster county for the past twenty-five years, according to the census enumerations of the various five-year periods:

1900	88,422
1905	86,560
1910	91,769
1915	85,367
1920	71,979
1925	83,052

First Gains in 15 Years.

From the above figures it will be seen that the gain made during the last five years has been the first since between 1905 and 1910, when the county added 5,199 to its residents and reached 91,769.

Villages Gained 779.

The combined population of the five incorporated villages of the county is now 9,767 as compared with 8,988. This means a gain in village population for the county of 779 since 1920.

Towns Gained 6,662.

Of the county's total population of 83,052, the towns can lay claim to 53,285, these latter figures representing the population of the towns according to the recent census. Back in 1920, the combined population of the towns in Ulster county amounted to 48,221, so there has been a gain in what might be termed, rural population, during the last five years of 6,662.

Kingston Gained 1,411.

The population for the city of Kingston was announced some time ago as being 28,992, as compared with 26,688 which was recorded the city by the Federal census in 1920, a gain of 1,411.

Village Population.

The following shows the population of the incorporated villages of Ulster county, according to the census enumerations of 1920 and 1925:

	1920	1925	Gain
Ellenville	3,116	3,316	200
New Paltz	1,056	1,266	210
Pine Hill	248	268	20
Rosendale	555	618	63
Saugerties	4,012	4,228	215

NOW IN TABLET FORM

Combined With IRON
To Make
RICH RED BLOOD

In all medicine there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil. Nothing has ever been discovered that is "just as good." For nearly two centuries—ever since 1766—Cod Liver Oil has been healing the sick. It has proved itself to be the one dependable medicine for every race and every nation on the face of the earth. Hospitals and physicians the world over recommend and use it. No form of medicine has stood the test of time like Cod Liver Oil—it is the same today as it was 156 years ago, when its benefits first became generally known.

And now a remarkable new method has been perfected by which the famous health-building elements of Cod Liver Oil are extracted by a wonderful scientific process and presented in a small sugar coated tablet. Just think what this means! Thousands of pale, sickly, run-down people who could never take Cod Liver Oil because of its horrible, nauseous taste may now be built up and strengthened in a way they never dreamed was possible.

Remember this name which has been given these new Cod Liver Oil tablets so that you may be sure to get the genuine. When you go to your drugstore ask for Burke's Extract of COD LIVER OIL and IRON tablets. Be sure to include the word "IRON"—for that is an important ingredient in this new flesh-building and tonic prescription. IRON together with other recognized health-building ingredients has been combined in Burke's Extract of COD LIVER OIL and IRON Tablets so that pale, sickly people lacking in proper blood strength may be sure of plenty of rich, red blood which brings the snap and vigor that are so much a part of rugged, happy health.

When you feel the need of a tonic—something to build you up after a spell of sickness—or if you find that you don't weigh as much as you should, Burke's Extract of COD LIVER OIL and IRON Tablets will start you gaining in just a few days. For growing children who lack appetite or may be "spindling" and pale looking, put them on a daily treatment of these pleasant-to-take tablets and note the difference in the sturdy health gained within a week's time.

Children Headed For Asylums

More Than a Million Headed for Insane Hospitals, Says National Medical Director, Because Mental Ailments Are Not Studied.

"There are over a million children in the public schools of America who are headed for no other place than for the hospital for the insane," declared Dr. Frankwood E. Williams, medical director of the National Committee for Mental Hygiene, in an address at the mental hygiene section of the joint health conference in New York city last week.

"Excellent work is being done," he said, "to improve the physical health of these children but for what purpose, and to what end? Removing the tonsils and fixing the teeth does improve their physical health and causes them to gain in weight. But in doing this and nothing more, we are preparing a certain large proportion of them for a life in the hospital for mental disease. This is unnecessary. If these children were studied as carefully mentally as physically, it would be unnecessary for them to end up in these hospitals."

"The important field of mental hygiene is in the school where the first steps on the road to mental health are taken."

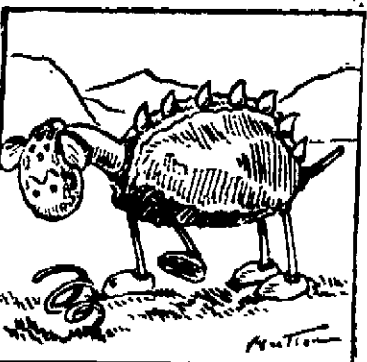

"Communities should be so organized that mental health problems can be cared for. There is needed in every community clinics composed of psychiatrists, psychologists and psychiatric social workers experienced in the behavior problems of children to which can be referred children from schools and the home."

"The mistake is generally made that mental hygiene concerns only those ill of mental disease and the mentally defective. There is no one who is not concerned with mental hygiene. In physical health there are those who are sick, and those who are well. We realize, however, that those who are well are not all equally well. Some are in good physical health, others in fair and others in poor physical health although not ill of any specific disease."

"The same is true of mental health. There are those who are sick in the hospital and those who are well. Of those who are well, some are in excellent mental health, others are in only fair mental health, some in poor and some in very poor mental health. Mental hygiene is, therefore, concerned with those who are not in good health as well as those who are formally sick."

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE CHILIAN NORK.

The nork gets its name from its peculiar habit of forming in line with other norks, each seizing the tail of the one in front, and norking up and down the sidewalks of Valparaiso. When such a line of norks have been sufficiently stuffed with corn flakes, they form an excellent picket fence to keep the hoboes from the tramp steamers in the harbor from climbing into the nitrate beds. The nork would make a fine riding horse if it were not so uncomfortable to sit on.

Here we see a young nork mischievously about to pull a spring out of a nitrate bed.

His body is a Brazil nut heavily spiked with popcorn. The face is a peanut with split navy bean ears and macaroni neck. The legs are toothpicks and split beans, and the tail is a clove.

Imagine the Shock

to Butler's Dignity!
Little Roy, on the occasion of his eighth birthday, received an invitation to his rich aunt's house. As he would stay a few days and had never been before, his mother carefully primed him before hand.

Special reference was made to his conduct at meal times, for in his own home Roy consumed his food in more or less the same way that the lower animals do.

"Now, Roy," said his mother, "be sure you behave nicely, and don't bolt your food. Remember that auntie keeps a butter who will attend to all your wants, but there is no need to be frightened of him."

"Right-he!" said Roy in the modern child's way, and he departed forthwith. It was at dinner that the tragedy occurred. Seeing the imposing old butter hovering near the table, young Roy clicked his fingers and beckoned to a truly imperial manner.

"What do you want, dear?" asked his aunt from the top of the table, whilst all eyes were centered on the delighted boy.

"I was going to ask the aunt," said Roy, indicating the butter with his spoon, "to blow my soup for me—It's too hot."

A thousand years' supply of potash for the American farmer, making us independent of supplies from Chile and other foreign countries, is possible as a result of a discovery of a new process for making potassium sulphate from green sand. Perhaps you never think of it in this way—but there is a lot of news about friends of yours in this paper right now. Friends who serve you daily—who lighten your work—amuse your leisure—contribute to your welfare and to the pleasure of your life.

Advertised products—familiar faces that you find in your living room, bedroom, bath, kitchen, garage and yard. Long association with them has proved their "friendship" to be valuable.

The advertisements are little intimate word pictures of these "commercial friends." Advertisements tell you how they are made, what they are doing, and how and where to get them.

As a general rule, there is nothing familiar or "friendly" about the appearance of an unadvertised product. You seldom see it in the paper—the stores—or even in homes. Largely because the great buying public has learned that the advertised product is the friend to tie to.

Read the advertisements regularly—they are messages from business friends.

A GOOD CITIZEN OF COLOR.

The Philadelphia Record reprints from the Columbia, S. C., Record correspondence from Bamberg in that state giving a eulogistic account of the late "Gus" Nimmons, a prosperous and highly respected negro, "than whom no better citizen lived in the county according to his lights," and whose life was "a splendid example of what thrift, honesty, integrity and good citizenship can accomplish for any person." It seems that Nimmons accumulated farm property worth some fifty thousand dollars and during the war was a large buyer of government securities, always paying cash for his stamps and bonds. This prosperous man of color always "held the respect of the white people" who looked upon him as "an honorable, upright Christian citizen who meant something to his county and community."

The Philadelphia Record concludes from this account that the northward migration of negroes in recent years, leaving the whites in a majority where once they were in an insecure minority, has brought about a change, producing "a degree of friendliness between the two races that was formerly lacking." No doubt the migrations have wrought changes in some particulars, but not in this one. The case of "Gus" Nimmons is nothing new, many similar cases having been reported in the course of the past quarter of a century and more. The black man of the south who rose above the level of his race in prosperity and good citizenship has never failed to win the respect, good will and admiration (not including "social equality") of his white neighbors. The conclusion of distant observers that such was not the case, merely because of ballot restrictions and the occasional lynching of a negro guilty, or believed to be guilty, of revolting crime, was a manifest absurdity.

NEED OF THE RED CROSS.

Why is the public still asked to contribute to the American Red Cross? What does it still find to do, and why does it need such general support, now that the war is over? The answer is that the American Red Cross was organized to cope with emergencies and disasters of every sort and came into existence long before the World War, in which its service was of such enormous benefit and grew to such vast proportions. Even its war service did not end at the armistice, for it continued and continues to be the friend of the injured and of families left in distress or want. Moreover, taking the country and the world as a whole, there are new emergencies, new disasters, every day, if not every hour, that call for aid.

A heroic agency in war, the Red Cross is also a vastly serviceable agency in peace. "Gradually," says an inquirer into the subject, "the need of this particular remedial service will grow less, but the preventive and preparedness program of the Red Cross must enlarge in anticipation of disasters which human precedence of science can neither divine nor avert: keeping a great army of nurses in reserve; maintaining in every one of the 3,600 chapters, which cover 'every square foot' of the United States, a complete organization for immediate action in time of fire, flood, pestilence, earthquake or other calamity; giving instruction in first aid to the injured and elementary hygiene and home-care of the sick, and enlisting hundreds of thousands of school children through the Junior Red Cross in activities that cultivate not only loyalty to national ideals, but international sympathy and helpfulness."

General Greener, who succeeded Lindendorf as quartermaster general toward the end of the World War, now says he is strongly recommended that the Emperor of Germany go to the battlefield as an actual fighter in his own personal interest as well as for the sake of the cause. But of course the "War Lord" preferred to leave the risks of the battle line to others.

There is reported discovery of a tribe of Central and South American Indians who speak in addition to their own language a pidgin English with a vocabulary including "gad-zooks," "forsooth," "marry," "yes," "nay" and other archaic words supposed to have been learned by their ancestors from Bartholomew Sharp's buccaners of 1680.

THOUGHT ON SLEEP.

A prominent business man consulted a physician because of his inability to sleep. He would awake about 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning and find it impossible to get off to sleep again. He was very much worried about it.

The physician learned that his patient motored to the office, arriving at 9 each morning, sat at his desk till 1 o'clock, had lunch and a smoke and a short dose at the club till 2.30, returned to his office till 5 o'clock, and then was motored home. Perhaps once during the week, and Saturday afternoon, he got in nine holes of golf. Considering the amount of work you do, you are getting all the sleep you need, so I'd forget all about it. If you would walk home each evening and you were not playing golf, I believe you would sleep two or three hours longer.

The physician's advice was followed, and the patient not only slept the night through after the walking and golf, but even when he omitted this exercise found that he was sleeping well.

What's the explanation? The exercise tired him, and the extra rest was necessary, but also because the physician had removed an "irritation" from his mind, that is the irritation of feeling that the loss of sleep was a very serious matter.

You know that if you hear an unusual or irritating noise, have a pain anywhere in the body, have any disagreeing thoughts, that it is almost impossible for you to get to sleep. And really, as I said once before, a sleep of a few hours for most of us is all we need, because we are practically resting our bodies all day long.

Lying down with all parts of the body partly bent, takes the tension off all the muscles, and with the tension off, the brain itself relaxes, and sleep comes on.

It is, of course, sometimes a difficult matter to thrust care or worries aside, but this relaxed position with deep breathing, will as someone has humorously remarked, "put a lot of sheep out of a job."

WHY

People Attach Value to "Bits of Stone"

What is the most valuable jewel? What effect has fashion on the price and cutting of gems?

What stones need the most care? How should people take care of their jewels and will water harm them?

How may a pearl be restored to its original luster and shape?

These are questions often asked of experts, writes K. Clifford Black in an article in Popular Science Monthly in which he tells of a number of facts about jewels astonishing to the layman.

Just what causes people to attach such value to gems is one of the mysteries of human nature. Money has changed during the centuries, but the value of jewels has remained fairly constant. In times of uncertainty fortunes sometimes are saved by converting money into jewels.

Nine persons in ten, if asked to name the most valuable jewel, would say "diamond." The fact is, though, that in a table ranking gems in the order of their value, carat for carat, the diamond has fourth place. Both emeralds and rubies are much more valuable, while the pearl, because of the difficulty in matching, is far above all others.

Increased demands for precious stones and changes in the mode of dress influence both the price and cut of gems. At present the style is to cut in the square or emerald shape. Twenty-five years ago, when curves were fashionable, round jewels were most popular.

Pearls need far more care than any other gem, for they are an animal product and easily destroyed. The opal also requires great care. Made of silica and water, it is very fragile. It was probably because of this that the superstition of bad luck is associated with it.

Water as a rule does not injure precious stones. Diamonds, rubies and sapphires can pass through fire without injury. It is comparatively easy, though, to destroy both diamonds and emeralds. They will shatter to bits if struck sharply. Face powder is bad for pearls. It clogs up the pores of the pearl's skin, just as it does those of the human skin. One should never wear pearls when sleeping, either. At night the largest percentage of acid is thrown off the body and this dissolves the pearls.

Pearls are restored to their former luster and shape by a process known as peeling. A pearl is made in layers, like an onion, and these outer layers can be removed until the pearl has become round again. The peeling process is a most delicate task. It is done with the fingernails and a sharp knife, and only a few men in the world know how to do it.

Why Nature Has Made Difference in Ankles

Why is an elephant's ankle so thick, and a mouse's so slender? The answer is bound up with the same facts that would make it impossible for a human giant 60 feet tall to take two steps without breaking both his legs. Explanations of some of the riddles of size and proportion in animals were set forth by Dr. J. B. S. Haldane, one of the most famous of English scientists, and author of the well known book of scientific prophecy, "Daedalus," addressing the British Association for the Advancement of Science.

The 60-foot giant imagined by Doctor Aldane would weigh about a thousand times as much as an ordinary man—say, ten tons—while the space on his thigh bone where muscles could be attached would be increased only a hundred times. The poor ogre would thus be vastly too heavy for his legs, and would infallibly collapse from sheer overweight. So that when we have a really heavy animal, like an elephant or a rhinoceros, he must have his bones and joints greatly thickened and strengthened to support his weight.—Science Service.

Why the Sea Is Blue

Holiday-makers are sometimes disappointed to find that the sea is not colored that beautiful azure blue which we love. A glass of sea water is perfectly transparent and colorless, yet the ocean is often colored any shade from yellow to purple. It is the salt in the sea water which causes the blue color, for all the innumerable small particles of salt in the water alter the sun's rays and reflect the blue light. Seas which contain a large proportion of salt are colored the deepest blue. The Mediterranean, for example, which is rich in salt, is perhaps the deepest blue known. And the Pacific ocean is dark enough to be called indigo.

Why Moon Affects Hair

"Has the moon any effect upon the growth of human hair?" asks a correspondent. A well-known astrologer declares that it has. He states that if the hair is cut when there is a new moon it grows twice as quickly as it cut when the moon is a dying one. Although this authority has a "luxuriant growth of hair," he has it cut only four or five times a year, always when there is a dying moon.

Why Bright Easter Colors

The use of bright colors at Easter is symbolic of the rays of the sun and the dawning hours of the Easter sun. Purple is largely used because from a very early period it was one of the most highly prized of all colors.

THANKSGIVING IN CAMP.

Thanksgiving Day in 1775 fell upon the 28th of November. Perhaps in some yet unexplored diaries, hidden away under the eaves of an old colonial home, records may some day come to light which will tell of little group festivities which helped to cheer the forces of Washington which were gathered at Cambridge on that Thanksgiving Day, but until that happens we must be content with meagre entries from the diary of Private Samuel Bixby, of Sutton, Massachusetts, a man whose nature apparently demanded the receptiveness of a diary for his daily relief. He says:

"November 23, 1775. Thursday. This is a day of public thanksgiving throughout the Province. We had the Reverend Mr. Bowman of Oxford to preach for us at the Colonel's as usual."

The text of the Thanksgiving sermon, preached so long ago to a band of discouraged soldiers lying at the threshold of the enemy's stronghold, was one verse from the one hundred and first Psalm, which starts:

"I will sing of mercy and judgment; into Thee, O Lord, will I sing."

The chapter finishes with the verse which reads:

"I will early destroy all the wicked of the land; that I may cut off all the wicked doers from the city of the Lord."

The causes for Thanksgiving for Washington and his men must have seemed rather meagre. They all knew that the only protection they had against an advance by Howe and his men was furnished by a slender line of trenches and a narrow body of water, behind which they patiently kept guard, with hardly enough powder and shot to carry them through a ten minute attack. One thing which they could be thankful for was that, ere this, Howe, within whose power lay an easy attack, had not demolished their entire camp. It was on that Thanksgiving night, however, that their commander-in-chief, ceaselessly alert to the best interests of his men and the cause of his country, sent out a message which could hardly be called a Thanksgiving greeting. Again it is to Private Samuel Bixby and his faithful diary that we are indebted for the following unofficial report of this message:

"24th. Friday. Orders came last night from Gen. Washington to Gen. Thomas, and from him to Colonel Larned, for every man to lie by his arms, and with his clothes on, as an attack was expected from the enemy, who had given out word that they would take supper with us in Roxbury on Thanksgiving night."

Perhaps a discerning spy may have advised Howe that a better Thanksgiving dinner could be found in Boston, with its well equipped cellars, than in the camp of Washington where beans and peas and spruce beer were the order of the day; at any rate the Americans were not forced to share their meat that night with the Britishers.

Preserving Eggs

Of the many methods which have been tried for preserving eggs on a small scale none has proved more successful than the use of water glass (sodium silicate). Pure water that has been boiled and then cooled should be used. To each ten quarts of water one quart of water glass should be added. The solution should be prepared, placed in a jar or crock, and the fresh eggs added from time to time until the jar is filled; but be sure that there are two inches of the solution covering the eggs. The eggs must not be washed before packing, for washing injures the keeping quality, probably by dissolving the membranes.

THAT AT SEA ONE ALMOST FORGETS THERE ARE OTHER FABRICS THAN FINE JERSEY OR BAL- BRIGGAN.

The answer to the query "What shall I wear to travel in?" is, assuredly, Jersey. If a trip overseas on a liner patronized by a class given greatly to smart dressing, is any criterion. Every woman aboard seems to have not one, but several two-piece jersey dresses, cocoa brown and all shades of tan and brown leading, with every other color from red to white also being worn. That all of these dresses are made on two-piece lines is significant, and that infinite variety is typical of them speaks well for the ingenuity and enterprise of designers, for necks do everything, from turn turtle to button right up to the shingled head and half or all the way down the back, to turn over in an attenuated V. There is usually a belt, and it is often of suede or leather, but is sometimes of the material clamped along its edges with metal. Skirts wrap around, are pleated here and there and do all manner of things considering how they are invariably cut off somewhere near the knee line; and what a hostery display the deck does afford with brown and tan again the color note, shoes being brown and stockings every shade from flesh to cinnamon. The rule of the sea as well as the land is nicely matched up extremities, including, in fact, starting with the hat and ending in tan kid.

Jersey first, then—but if you're tiring of it, or want something a little more formal, what a choice, among the covert cloths, again in tans and those in soft greens, sage, bottle, fir tree, epizard and the like. These dresses, very new and expensive looking for all their plainness, perhaps because of it, require expert tailoring for they have a tricky habit of being gored or having inserted sections here and there which give the greatly desired flare without disturbing the slimmness of the hips. They have fitted shoulder yokes, too, and carefully fitted collars and sleeves, and have a way of being bound with themselves.

Historic Island

Bedloe's Island, on which the Statue of Liberty stands, was ceded to the United States government for the purpose of harbor defense and it was occupied by Fort Wood. We do not find a record of any military prison on the island, though soldiers may have been held in detention there. The neighboring Governor's Island has a military prison. It is interesting to note that Bedloe's Island or Liberty Island has lately been transferred to civil status, having heretofore been considered a part of the military post of Fort Wood. By proclamation, in 1924, the statue was made a national monument and its base a national park. The government now makes separate appropriations for the army post on the island and for the upkeep of the statue, most of this being for lighting.—Washington Star.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

PARENTS AS CHILDREN

Sally Fenwick who had changed places with her mother and now was called Parent Sally Fenwick, and Bobby Fenwick, who had changed places with their parents, in the town of Reven-Saw, were busy these first few days of acting the parts of parents.

They found so many things to attend to for their daddy and mother, who were now taking their places.

You see, they were trying out the most unusual experiment of seeing what it was like to be each other. So the parents were being the children, and the children the parents.

It could only have happened in the most unusual place of Reven-Saw, too. It was a very topsy-turvy town.

"My dears," said Parent Sally Fenwick to little Daddy and little Mother Fenwick, "you must go to bed early tonight. For tomorrow is the opening of school. Have you looked over the lessons you will have?"

"We don't have any for tomorrow," said Daddy Fenwick, "except to know what we learned last year. Just a kind of review of the whole thing."

"Kind of isn't correct," Parent Robert said. Then he noticed Daddy Fenwick was wrinkling up his forehead.

"What is the matter, son?" he asked kindly.

"Why you see I didn't go to school last year, and I forget what I did learn in a general way, but nothing particular. Maybe you'll look 'em over with me, Parent."

Parent Robert looked at the lesson books. He had been playing all summer and hadn't thought of school. Besides he had grown so much older. He didn't really remember how to do those lessons in the books, but it would never do to let Daddy and Mother Fenwick know this.

"Son," Parent Robert said, in a smart, crisp, firm way, "you must work out those problems for yourself. You will never learn if you don't do it that way. Besides, son, can't you see that your parent is busy now?"

He picked up a newspaper.

"You should have looked over your books this afternoon," said Parent

"You Must Go to Bed Early."

Sally, "for it is bedtime now. You'll be a stunted boy if you don't get proper rest."

"Parent Robert," Daddy Fenwick said, "I'll have to have some money for new books. Most of those we won't be using at all after this week, so they said today when we went to register."

Parent Robert sighed a long sigh.

"Do your teachers think that money grows on trees? Why won't the old books do? We weren't changing books all the time in my day. And it's the way with the lessons, too. They teach lessons so differently now."

Parent Robert was thinking how very confused he was when he glanced at Daddy Fenwick's books. "Changes, changes, they won't be any the wiser for them either."

"But, Parent Robert, I must have money for the new books. We all have to have them. Those won't do."

Parent Robert put his hand down into his golf trouser pocket, and pulled forth a bill.

"Just because I'm head of the bank," he said, "I haven't got all the money in the world. You can tell your teacher that for me. I suppose she thinks I'm a rich man. That's a joke." Parent Robert laughed at it himself.

"How can any one be rich these days with all these saw-fangled notions about changing the school books every year and all the expensive things you children seem to want to make you happy?"

"Oh, Parent," piped up Mother Fenwick.

"Yes, daughter, what is it?"

"Oh, I saw the loveliest, big walking doll today. Can't I have it?"

"How absurd!" said Parent Sally. "Why when I was a little girl I was given a tiny doll stuffed with sawdust and I had it for years and was perfectly happy with it. Now you want a walking doll. Dear, dear, what children don't want these days!"

"Couldn't Be Softer"

"Jimmy," said a mother to her quick-tempered small boy, "you must not grow angry and say naughty things. You should always give a soft answer."

FOOD FOR COOL DAYS

As the cool days come, bringing an appetite for more hearty and hot foods, we enjoy a hot soup about as well as anything.

And it is a good dish to give those who are inclined to stoutness; it satisfies without overburdening the digestion. The following is a nourishing soup, not simply a stimulant:

Dutch Soup.—Put one-half cupful of grated cheese into a saucepan with three pints of milk. Simmer gently for ten minutes; when the cheese is dissolved, season with salt, pepper, a tablespoonful of butter and a pinch of sugar. Add one-half cupful of macaroni cut fine and previously cooked. Beat three eggs well, mix with a little of the soup and add gradually to the remainder, stirring constantly. Do not let the soup boil after adding the eggs. Serve with diced, toasted bread.

Sardines on Toast.—Trim the crusts from slices of bread and cut into finger-sized pieces and toast. Drain the sardines from the oil and lay one on each piece of toast; sprinkle with pepper and lemon juice and cook ten minutes in a very hot oven.

Beef Ragout.—Take one pound of beef cut into one-inch pieces and slice one onion thin. To two tablespoonfuls of fat in a frying pan add the onion and the meat, stir and cook until well browned. Add one bunch of celery cut fine, two cupfuls of tomato, one-half package of spaghetti cooked, one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper; let simmer three hours, or until the meat is tender. Add a little hot water if there is danger of burning, but cook very slowly. Serve on a platter; sprinkle with finely grated cheese.

Quick Beef Stew.—Cut cold roast of beef into small pieces, dredge with flour and fry brown in butter. Add chopped onion to season, a little currant jelly and beef extract dissolved in a little water. Heat thoroughly and serve at once.

Sumptuary Laws Always Resented

Lack of Religious Instruction Supplemented by Sumptuary Laws Responsible for Crime Wave, Says Judge Clearwater Before Legislative Committee in New York City.

Newspapers have given much emphasis to the statement made by Judge Clearwater last week before the joint legislative committee to consolidate the Penal Law and Code of Criminal Procedure at their meeting at the Bar Association rooms in New York city, during the whole of the week, to which meetings they invited a number of the leaders of the bar of the state.

The judge said that the crime wave now sweeping over the country was tidal in volume and velocity, in that it seemed to embrace widely separated sections of the United States, and all classes of society. A marked feature of it was that most persons charged with criminal offenses were under forty years of age.

Lack of Religious Instruction.

The primal cause in his opinion was the lack of religious and moral instruction in the home and in the public schools. In former generations religious and moral instruction in American homes was almost universal, and there was a decided impetus of moral instruction in the schools. We had gone so far in our desire to avoid anything like sectarian collision between the religious sects of the country, he said, that almost we had eliminated instruction in morals and manners not only from public schools but from the colleges and universities of the land, with the inevitable result that there was an absence of that restraint which from the founding of the country until comparatively recently had characterized American life.

Sumptuary Laws Resented.

Another cause, said the judge, is the engraving upon the Constitution of a sumptuary law which radically interfered with the tastes and habits of a large element of our population. All sumptuary laws, said he, are opposed to the genius of a free people. Always they will be resented and the revolt against them never can be suppressed.

There are so many historic instances of the truth of this that it is difficult to reconcile the attitude of millions of intelligent and presumably well-informed people with the well established rules of human action.

Early Examples of Regulation.

For instance, in England in the reign of Edward the Confessor nearly six hundred years ago, a large number of well meaning people thought that the inhabitants of England ate meat to excess, by reason of which the price of meat greatly was increased, and people who desired to maintain their social position bought and consumed more of it than they could afford, whereupon the Parliament of England passed an act making it a felony to have more than two courses of any kind of food at a meal, or but two sorts of victual, only one of which could contain meat except in the principal feasts of the year, and then only three courses were allowed.

The result was that many people served five courses of food with three and four courses of meat, there were innumerable prosecutions for the violations of the law, which eventually was repealed.

Regulating Clothing.

Subsequently, in the reign of Richard the III in 1483, Parliament, regarding men and women as dressing too extravagantly, passed an act regulating the dress of both, prescribing the number of garments they should wear and what of them should be silk and what wool.

Again, in the reign of Charles the II in 1663, the wool growers of England in order to increase the consumption of wool secured the passage of an act of Parliament that the dead should be buried in woolen shrouds, making it a felony to bury any person in silk.

Both of these acts deliberately were disregarded and violated by practically all classes of Englishmen and of course eventually were repealed.

Must Consider People Innocent.

Judge Clearwater said he was opposed to the drastic remedy suggested by a number of judges and prominent publicists, who advised the abolition of the common law rule providing that every man is presumed innocent until he is proven guilty. The abolition of this rule, he said, was abhorrent and utterly destructive of human rights. These eminent people, he added, either ignored or were unconscious of the great truth that laws were made for the innocent as well as for the guilty, that the guilty were the exception. Therefore, the presumption of innocence always should remain.

He added that he was inclined to favor the removal of the inhibition prohibiting judges and district attorneys in the presentation of a case to a jury in a criminal trial from alluding to the fact that the defendant failed to take the stand in his own behalf. He said, however, that if this inhibition was removed, it should be accompanied with a drastic provision prohibiting either the judge or a district attorney from interrogating a defendant regarding any other transaction than the one for which he was indicted.

The Eighteenth Amendment.

In speaking of the Eighteenth amendment, he said it would be impossible to repeal it because to the thirteen southern states it was an economic necessity with their labor problem. To the twenty-five states west of the Ohio river it had become a religious necessity. This made thirty-eight states. There were only forty-eight. It required three-fourths of them to amend the Constitution, and it was improbable that any person now living would see the Eighteenth Amendment repealed. However, that amendment permitted legislative enactment as

"Smiling Jack" Harding, who is to tell the story of the World Flight at the High School on Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Women's Federation is seen in the accompanying photograph with his pilot, Eric Nelson, in front of their world flight ship, "The New Orleans." The story of the world flight, as told by Lieutenant Harding, is one of the most interesting and dramatic narratives ever told. Along with the lecture will be shown some 8,000 feet of motion pictures and many remarkable still views taken in all sections of the world along the official historic flight-of-way. Jack Harding's story is a most human record of one of the most remarkable adventures of the age.

The Federation of Women's Clubs are bringing Mr. Harding to Kingston, and in order that the boys and girls may hear and see him and his pictures, school tickets can be had at a nominal price. to the construction of alcohol content and under it Congress and the Legislatures of the various states could provide for the sale and consumption of wine and beer of slight alcoholic content. The result of doing so would be to eliminate that spirit of adventure which now lead men to pride themselves to regard a violation of the existing law as something of an achievement.

U. S. and Russia Alone.

The judge added that England gave up sumptuary laws except in time of war after the abolition of the act passed in the reign of Charles the II, and that sumptuary laws did not now exist in any civilized country of the world with the exception of United States and Russia. The judge's remarks were heartily approved by the large gathering of leading lawyers and legislators who attended the hearing and widely have been commended by newspapers not only in this, but in other states.

Stereotyped Expression

When any childless person is shown a child of any age whatever, they say: "Oh, just at the interesting age."

Planes Find Runaways

Army planes from Crilesey field, California, lent help recently to the authorities of San Quentin prison when six trustees escaped in a launch. The planes scanned every launch in the bay until at last they sighted the fugitives. Then they signaled their discovery to the officers on shore and the prisoners were recaptured.

Rail Office Court

At Wolf Point, Mont., a railroad office has, for the first time in America probably, become the county courthouse. The Great Northern Railroad company moved its division headquarters to Havre, and Roosevelt county, while it is erecting a suitable county building, has moved in on a three years' lease.

Pastor Pleased With His Church

Father Casack Assumes New Duties at St. Joseph's Church—Congregation and Pastor Make Strong Impression on Each Other.

The Rev. Louis M. Casack, who was assigned last week by Cardinal Hayes to succeed the Very Rev. Joseph D. Cushman, V. F., as pastor of St. Joseph's Church, appeared at all the Masses on Sunday, coming from Blauvelt, Rockland county, where he had been four years. He spoke briefly to the large congregation during the morning.

Having learned for some time of the loyalty of the parishioners of St. Joseph's and of its being one of the best in the diocese, he said the favorable impression which resulted caused him to be pleased because of his new assignment. Knowing the Rev. Father Cushman for thirty years and of his grand work was an assurance that the road had been cleared of obstacles in the line of work that often follow when assuming a new charge with people unknown to the newcomer.

That he might always be enabled to measure up to the responsibilities that will confront him from time to time, Father Casack asked for the prayers of the parishioners. St. Joseph's new pastor made a fine impression upon those who heard him by his pleasing manner.

THE MOHICAN COMPANY

THE STORE THAT SAVES YOU MONEY.

296 Wall Street, Near John Street, Kingston, N. Y.

Hawley Farm Sold.

Frank S. Hyatt has sold through the Ulster Realty Agency the 17-acre farm in the village of Hawley to Winard Elmendorf and Mabel his wife. The property consists of five acres with a number of young fruit trees, asparagus, berries, etc., new seven room house and large barn. The Elmendorfs have already taken possession of their new purchase and Mrs. Hyatt, who recently lost her husband, has moved to 14 Liberty street where she is conducting a modern and up-to-date rooming house.

Tunnies Worry Fishermen

Mediterranean tunnies have become common along the Norwegian coast, and are being exported by the thrifty Norwegian fishermen. The "mackerel giant" as it is called in Norway, is one of the strongest and saltiest fish known, and it may run to 1,000 pounds in weight. A comparatively small one recently netted off Grimsby, England, weighed 400 pounds. At Ostjager, Denmark, a 600-pounder has been brought in. Attributing their presence to the warm summer, English fishermen say that large schools are roaming about the North sea, creating terror about other fish. Some think that the absence of herring shoals from their customary haunts is due to the presence of these hungry Mediterranean marauders.

Earliest U. S. Industry

The first industrial enterprise in the United States was a glass bottle factory erected in the Virginia colony soon after 1607. The works were about one mile from Jamestown. The second glass house was erected in 1622 for the manufacture of glass beads for trading with the Indians.

The directors and stockholders are Arthur Broas and John D. Terwilliger, Ellenville; Lucius L. Maxon, 21 Liberty street, Kingston.

Slight Fires Over Week End

An alarm from box 61, corner of Greenkill avenue and Broadway, shortly before noon Sunday called the firemen to the Hantz pajama factory on Greenkill avenue where fire was burning in soft coal stored in a shed. It is supposed that spontaneous combustion was the cause. The fire was quickly extinguished.

A second call was sent in for the department Sunday afternoon when a grass fire in the woods on the F. A. Waters property off Lawrence street assumed a threatening character.

Sunday evening someone saw what appeared to be a fire in the home of Ernest Wirth at 66 Prospect street. A still alarm was sent in and the firemen responded. They found that the fire was in a stove and burning wood threw a reflection through the window, giving the appearance of a fire in the room.

Wanted Winding

An absent-minded man was a member of a geological survey expedition in Arizona.

One morning he found that his watch had stopped. It would not respond to shaking, and as the party was dependent upon it for observations the owner traveled thirty miles by wagon to a little town where there was a watch-repairer.

The man opened the case, explored the works, closed the case, twisted the winder, and handed the watch back to its owner with the remark: "That's a fine movement—one of the best I've seen. But you'll have to wind it."

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, Nov. 23.—Both in the volume of trading and in the range of price changes, today's stock market was a marked contrast with that of the last few weeks' sessions. The action of the market suggested the actual arrival of the period of calm after a speculative storm.

Dearish efforts to depress prices met with little results. Commission houses had a good volume of real liquidation and profit taking to take care of in the first period, after which the market exhibited a stronger tone. Stock transactions were the lowest of any full sessions in nearly a month with sales at the end of the third hour 349,100 shares.

Good recoveries were made by the motor stocks in the fourth hour, after prices had gone to the lowest average level of the movement. General Motors with a 6 1/2 point dividend marked off, sold at 113 1/2, and Chrysler sold at 18 1/2. White Motors and Hudson recovered about five points from the low of the early trading and United States Rubber advanced nearly four.

United States Steel led the metal stock into a higher range of values. The copper independent steel and International Nickel participating. Mercantile shares attracted better buying. Industrial Alcohol and other stocks which were under pressure last week made moderate recoveries. Call money was in good support at 1 1/2 and the money situation received very little attention today. The decline of the French franc to a new low for the year reflected the extreme tension in the French financial and political situation. A further advance was recorded in local cotton and wheat prices.

Kingston Wins From Albany

The representative Volley Ball team of the local Y. M. C. A. won its first set of games last Saturday evening by defeating the crack Albany team. It was the intention to play for the best four out of seven games but only five games were necessary to decide the championship, Kingston winning four of the five by 15-6, 15-8, 12-15, 15-0 and 15-11.

Ten men were used on the Kingston aggregation and it was difficult to tell which were the best. Captain Gordon Craig of the locals shone as star player of the evening while Le Roy Longendyke was not far behind. As passers and boosters Ted Young and Richard Marchant were at their best. Chester Dolson and Rob Murray also played a wonderful spiking game while Tom Morrisey and De Lancy DeGriff had their eyes open every minute of the play and always passed the ball to the spikers. The Kingston team can feel proud of defeating Albany, for the up river team have already defeated such teams as Amsterdam, Troy, etc.

K. H. S. No Match For Poughkeepsie

Team Representing Local High School Trounced by Poughkeepsie at the Latter's Field Saturday, Score 46 to 0—Last in League.

The Kingston High School football team of '25 sank sadly to the solitary depths of the Duso League racket Saturday afternoon in Poughkeepsie as Coach Kallach's warriors remembering their school's overwhelming defeat at the hands of a Kingston team in '24, ripped the K. H. S. eleven to shreds. The final reading was Poughkeepsie, 46; Kingston, 0.

The Poughkeepsie squad rolled up seven touchdowns, two points after a touchdown, and a safety, after which the Bridge City backers rushed upon Memorial Field and bore Captain Charley Hogan through the city's streets, relating to fellow Poughkeepsians their new deed of revenge against the Maroon and white.

The Bridge City school eleven were a light outfit with a backfield unusually adept in propelling and catching passes and a front wall interference which interfered. Poughkeepsie made four of the seven touchdowns mainly through its accurate aerial attacks.

The Poughkeepsians made their initial stab the opening quarter, getting the leather on the Maroon's forty yard line after the team had engaged in a fumbling duel, working it across on line bucking warfare.

Coach Kallach used his second team back wall this opening period after which the regular backs took the field and ran the ball over in about one minute of playing. The Blue squadron escorted the pigskin between the uprights once more before the period closed, Flick fumbling a forty yard punt on the local's twenty marker and Howell grabbing the pigskin with a bare field ahead of him and galloping across the chalk line.

The Blue and White were content with one jab at the K. H. S. crew the third quarter, running the leather over on a twenty-five yard pass. But the Blue outfit didn't hit its true stride until the final period when it became filled with a desire to eclipse the Maroon's victory of last season, which it did and then some. In this final session the Poughkeepsians registered three more touchdowns, mostly through their overhead tactics and then completed the affair with a safety. The K. H. S. squadron also made a little ground by virtue of its spiral warfare but when resorting to line bucking plays would be forced to punt, never severely threatening the Blue and White goal. The line up:

Twenty-one colleges have entered full teams for the varsity race and thirteen will start in the Freshman event.

Passing Teams Lead the Field

Advocates of the Forward Pass Are Winners—Unbeaten College Eleven in Country—Colgate Stressed Running Attack.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

New York, Nov. 23.—The pioneers of modern football, advocates of the forward pass, happen to be comparatively few and the most of them are winners, namely Alabama, Dartmouth, Washington, Tulane, Princeton, Michigan, Notre Dame, etc. The first four with Colgate, remained today as the only unbeaten college elevens in the country, the last three are included among those who have lost but one game and all of them make due and strategic use of the forward pass.

Yale and Harvard, reactionaries ever, do nothing of the kind. Both lost to Princeton by a large majority and finished in a preposterous tie on Saturday.

Missouri is a good passing team and it was not until the recent week end that it was beaten. Kansas put the thing over by the margin of a field goal, but then, there never was an logical means of forecasting a Missouri-Kansas game. The defeat dropped Missouri out of consideration for national honors, just as the sweeping victories of Georgetown and Brown put Iordham and New Hampshire out of the running, if the latter ever was in, which the writer is pleased to doubt.

These results clarified the atmosphere somewhat. They left Dartmouth virtually the undisputed champion of Eastern football, for one thing. For another, Tulane beat Louisiana State and Alabama didn't play, leaving this pair at the peak in the South.

Then Michigan showed that it still was the great team its early season friends claimed by beating Minnesota, 35 to 0. If there is any justice in the land, Michigan will be awarded the conference title on sight and placed in the top flight for Middle Western supremacy with Notre Dame, which staked Northwestern to ten points and then went out and won.

Michigan lost its only game by a single point to Northwestern but the victory was achieved under highly improbable conditions, a heavy rain and a heavier field leveling everything. Were the game to be re-played tomorrow, Michigan would figure as a certain winner and the megaphone men would be trying to shout down Dartmouth, Alabama, Washington and Tulane.

Colgate, of course, cannot be listed as a non-passing outfit, for the team doesn't live that can play that kind of football today and win. However, Colgate has stressed the running attack because of Tryon's ball-carrying ability, just as Illinois has played up to Grange's genius in the open field.

Yet Illinois is a passing team, in that it knows when and how to use the pass. It finished up its season in a blaze of glory by beating Ohio State.

Chicago is not a passing team and it finished up its season in a blaze of obscurity, or something, by losing to Wisconsin.
